POLITICAL.

One of the Virginia Factions

NEW YORK, July 27 —The Herald announces an interview yesterday between a committee from the U S labor league and Hancock Gen McBride of Virginia the spokesman of the committee said that both democrats and republicans belonged to their organization which exercises local influence in many sections; that in September next they would hold a convention in this city at which they would decide the question as to which of the candidates to give their support A decision that could only be reached by first ascertaining which of the candidates was most in accord with their views He denied that their organization had any connection with socialism or communism Their sole object was to secure justice to the working classes an enforcement of the eight hour law the establishment of a system of arbitration between employers and workmen to prevent strikes and the enactment of laws tending to more justly award the division of profits between capital and labor After listening to the statements of the committee, Hancock refused to express any views in the matter Under the circumstances all he could do and this he cheerfully did was to give them a letter of introduction to Senator Barnum, chairman of the democratic central committee The letter was a strictly formal one and said that the gentlemen would explain their business

Grand Republican Conference to be Held at New York

Tuesday's Times says A republican conference of great importance will be held in this city August 5th. The indications from every part of the country as shown by communications received at the national committee headquarters, are that the republicans are not only ready but anxious to prosecute the campaign with vigor There seems every reason to believe that what is called in many letters the "old time" republican spirit will be awakened and that not only the old time republicans but a vast army of young and active men who are about to cast their first vote for president will be organized in support of republican principles and the Chicago candidates It has been considered advisable at this time in the campaign to call together some of the representative men of the party from every section of the country to consider the best means of acting upon what appears to be a general and rolling impulse to make an early and active campaign, and to decide upon a plan that will make it most effective from one end of the country to the other Among others who have been requested to take part in this conference are Gen Garfield and Gen Arthur They will meet the members of the national committee, the chairmen of the different state committees the congressional committee, and about 100 prominent republicans from different states who are not members of either of the committees named

Exodus of Negroes from Kentucky to Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS July 27 — The Louisville Courier Journal is excited over what it calls an exodus of negroes from Kentucky into Indiana "to vote the republican ticket That many colored people are leaving Kentucky for Indiana is true but that there is any political design in the movement is utterly false. The fact is that the colored men of Kentucky are just beginning to find out that their condition in a democratic state is almost as bad as it was before slavery was abolished and that they can greatly better their condition by going north There is a growing exodus movement in Kentucky especially from Nelson and adjoining counties and its only explanation is the fact that in Kentucky they are oppressed and deprived of all ordinary privileges of citizenship while in Indiana and other northern states they can find employment at fair wages and are treated like human beings

Improbable Report

WASHINGTON July 27 —Assistant Secretary of the Interior Bell does not credit an assorted press dispatch to the effect that the Ute commission has been met in a hostile manner Mr Bell thinks that no more opposition has ensued than is usually the case in councils where new propositions are made and said that nothing significant has happened If anything important has occurred he is confident that the commission would have advised the department, and up to a late hour to-day not a word had been heard from them

Spain must make Amends.

WASHINGTON, July 27 —Col John Hay, assistant secretary, denies the report that this government was satisfied with the Spanish explanation of firing upon our vessels This government holds that the statements of the captains and crews of the fruiters fired upon are more worthy of belief than assurances of the Spanish government, and if these statements are backed by affidavits reparation will be demanded in spite of the declarations of Spanish authorities They have sent to Philadelphia for these affidavits, and expect the captains will send them in support of their statements as to the firing and the distance they were from shore. If it is established in this way that the vessels were over one league from shore when the event occurred, Spain must make the amende honorable Cabinet Meeting.

A short cabinet session was held to day The Spanish outrage question was not discussed but as Secretary Evarts remained with the president after adjournment, the matter is believed to have been made the subject of private consultation During the session Secretary Evarts referred to the fact that Admiral Wyman's dispatches of Friday last had been furnished the public before they were handed over to the state department, and took Commodore Jeffers representing the navy department, mildly to task for the leak in his department.

Secretary Sherman alluded to the encouraging condition of the nation's finances as shown by excess of receipts over expenditures for the present month and predicts the continuance of a healthy and favorable condition of affairs

The mint and sub treasury at San Francisco are overflowing with silver coin, and application is made for transfer of $2,000 000 The cost of transporting this sum at the rates charged by express companies and railroads would be $20 000—one per cent The question of the mode in which this silver can be transported and where it can be most easily stored and not exceed the amount of $20 000 appropriated for vault room, is being considered by the treasury department

CRIMINAL MATTERS

Border Measures in Maryland.

WASHINGTON July 27 —John Diggs (negro) who outraged Mrs Jas. Tichilloly Saturday night last near Darnestown, Maryland was lodged in jail at Rockville yesterday Shortly before 4 this morning about 50 men appeared at the jail and one of them demanded admission on the plea of identification Sheriff Kitchen refused admittance while the crowd remained and they fell back a few feet Another formal demand being made a slight demur was made by the deputy sheriff This was a signal for assault and the door was broken in While the door was being forced quite a melee occurred with the officers and even after Diggs had been brought out in the open air the sheriff made another attempt to rescue his prisoner He was immediately caught and held In his struggles he received a cut on the arm The band then hurried Diggs off his ankle irons clanking as he was forced down the road at a quick trot. He seemed quite calm and said that he was willing to die Some distance from town the party met a horse by preconcerted arrangement Diggs hands and arms were pinioned and it was then found that to hang him by running the horse from under him was impracticable A noose was placed around his neck and he was hauled from the ground making but little resistance The body was left hanging Diggs made a full confession of the crime to the sheriff previous to the jail being forced EASTERN COMPLICATIONS.

The Porte Declines the Note

CONSTANTINOPLE July 27 —The porte in its reply to the collective note of the powers points out that article 24 of the treaty of Berlin merely authorized the powers to offer mediation not arbitration It declares that the decision of the recent conference gives Greece more territory than the protocol [illegible] of the Berlin treaty and indicates that the proposed session includes a position which it is impossible for Turkey to surrender

LONDON July 27 —A Constantinople dispatch to the Daily News says that the porte is trying to place the responsibility of rejecting the decree of the Berlin conference on the grand council but ambassadors have intimated to the sultan that he alone is responsible. In the meantime troops and stores are being hurried to Albania If Greece should move to occupy disputed territory it is intended to convert the Turkish soldiers into Albanian troops The tenor of the Turkish press is very violent towards the European powers

BERLIN July 26 —Prince Bismarck confers with Count Von Munster and Prince Hohenlohe in respect to the answer of the porte to the collective note

Plotting against Prince Alexander.

BUCHAREST, July 27 —The Turkish ambassador has received information that Aleko Pasha, governor of eastern Roumelia is treating with the Bulgarians for a union with the object of dethroning Prince Alexander in his favor

The Turkish Army.

CONSTANTINOPLE July 27 —The 120 battalions of the Turkish regular troops in Europe have been increased by the addition of 800 men to each battalion

A Hint of Trouble

BERLIN July 27 —It is feared that the good understanding existing among the powers respecting Turkey will be disturbed when it is necessary to proceed from mere negotiation to real action

An Ultimatum Forthcoming

VIENNA July 27 —The powers will draw up an ultimatum summoning the porte to fulfill within three weeks the Montenegrin convention and in the event of a refusal, naval demonstrations will take place

Roumania Declines to Surrender Nihilists.

BERLIN, July 27 —The government of Roumania has declined to grant extradition to a number of Nihilists on the ground that such an act would be contrary to the law of the land

Special Condescension.

PARIS July 27 —The Rappel professes to have received information from the best sources at Constantinople that Queen Victoria recently addressed an autograph letter to the sultan imploring him in the interest of his empire to accede to the wishes of the powers.

PESTH July 27 —Hodo Bey reports from camp at Tusi that many hundred Montenegrins recently made a raid near Gazrika, but were repulsed after three hour's hard fighting

The Porte's Reply.

CONSTANTINOPLE July 27 —The porte's reply to the collective note has been submitted to the sultan for his approval and will be communicated to ambassadors forthwith It is believed that the tenor of the reply as originally adopted by the ministers, has been modified

English Influence

Goschen, the British ambassador has a private interview with the sultan to day

Turkey and the Proposed Demonstration.

CONSTANTINOPLE July 27 —The porte has discovered through one of its agents abroad, that England confidentially sounded the powers on the subject of a naval demonstration but the intelligence caused no alarm Abeddin Pasha minister of foreign affairs is reported to have said that any demonstration of the kind would simply have the effect of inciting the Albanians to energetic action, and naval authorities opine that a hostile fleet could not inflict much real injury so long as the Dardanelles are properly protected by forts and torpedoes The sultan is guided chiefly by fear of immediate consequences and his fears together with all other influences around him, tend to make him offer a dogged resistance

Continental newspapers seem to make no question that Queen Victoria has written a letter to the sultan, but judging from an analysis of the letter published by the Paris Rappel, it appears highly improbable it was either written or authorized by the queen

A High Commission

British Admiral Sir F Seymour will command the combined squadron in the naval demonstration against Turkey

THE AFGHAN SETTLEMENT.

Rejoicing over the Elevation of the New Ameer—The British to Immediately Evacuate Cabul—The Situation Satisfactory to John Bull.

LONDON, July 27 —Morning papers point out the fact as significant that in proclaiming Abdurrahman Khan the formula used was "Ameer of Cabul," not "Ameer of Afghanistan" indicating the intention of the government to maintain separation of Candahar The British forces in front of Candahar apprehend an attack from Ayoob Khan

A Cabul dispatch to the Times says that a general feeling of relief is manifested in Afghanistan that a conclusive step is at last taken, and the new ameer will commence his reign with many conditions in his favor He will scarcely allow sentimental gratitude to Russia for past favor to outweigh those future favors which he knows he may expect from the British if he behaves loyally, nor if all native testimony is to be believed will the Afghans themselves permit their future ruler to risk involving them in a second contest with the British by exhibiting Russian sympathies

Prayers were read in all the mosques in the name of Ameer Abdurrahman Khan with a great degree of enthusiasm At Jellalabad the news was received with satisfaction The first interview between the British political agent and the new premier will take place early this week ten miles north of Sherpur The British guard is withdrawn from the city hall into Bala Hissar Priest Moshke Allam is trying to reconcile opposition chiefs to Abdurrahman and much has been done towards healing all feuds and strengthening Abdurrahman's party It is expected the British army will evacuate Cabul in August

More of the Afghan Settlement

In the house of commons the marquis of Hartington secretary for India replying to inquiry said that communications with Abdurrahman Khan were opened by Lord Lytton and continued by the marquis of Ripon the present viceroy He has simply been recognized as ameer of Cabul No foreign minister or foreign interference will be allowed at Cabul Temporary assistance is promised the ameer He will not be asked to receive a British mission but a Mohammedan envoy will be sent to Cabul on behalf of India and it is hoped that the troops will shortly be able to retire handing over the city to the ameer

Lord Hartington also said that the uncertainty of Afghan politics was so great that it was impossible to feel that all our troubles there were ended Arrangements for the retirement of troops were not altogether contingent upon the proceedings of Abdurrahman Khan or the people of Afghanistan General Stewart was amply strong to hold his own against any possible combination and to retire when and how he thought proper Abdurrahman Khan had been informed that no negotiation could be entered into yet respecting Candahar or the districts named in the treaty of Gundamak He was also informed that Great Britain does not consider Afghanistan within the sphere of interference by any foreign power and that the ruler of Cabul cannot have relations with any foreign power except Great Britain that if he conformed to her desires and was guided by her advice Great Britain would assist him against unprovoked aggression by any foreign power that Great Britain would not interfere in the internal affairs of Afghanistan and would not ask him to accept a British resident Probably at the conclusion of our arrangements with him an envoy will be sent to hold communication with him Whether these arrangements shall be embodied in a formal treaty will depend mainly upon Abdurrahman Khan himself, upon the desire he evinces for our friendship and to follow our advice and above all, upon his treatment of those chiefs and tribes who have been our friends for the past two years

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Compensation Bill Passes the House

The compensation bill was read a third time and finally passed

In the vote on the Irish compensation bill [illegible] home rulers voted with the government, [illegible] 200 conservatives and 20 liberals in the minority Nine conservatives voted with the government Forty liberal peers are said to have promised to vote for the compensation bill

The Times says the normal majority in the house of commons of the liberals and home rulers combined is at least 170 and the diminution of the ministerial strength as shown by last night's division is in a measure through an inadequate one of the discontent which the compensation bill provoked

LONDON July 27 —The Times says The compensation bill has fallen into disrepute through its inherent vices of structure and character It would be well for the government to abstain from raising a question of this kind until the royal commission has reported on the subject In the meantime vague intimation of coming changes engender more alarm and alienate more support than all efforts of the conservatives' oratory

An Unpleasant Matter

PARIS July 29 —The reports sent to America of the suicide of Mrs. Annie Wetmore, the divorced wife of a citizen of New York, at the residence of the divorced English wife of Lord Albert Pelham Clinton in this city are likely to become the subject of serious judicial investigation There appears to be no reason whatever to suppose that the unfortunate Mrs Wetmore committed suicide at all her death being officially reported as caused by congestion of the brain The story of the suicide is to-day believed to have been concocted by a clique in this city of various nationalities but of one social class in the hope of extorting hush money from a conspicuous foreigner formerly acquainted with Mrs Wetmore It is a painful story and the details will probably throw a very unpleasant light on certain aspects of the press in the French capital

A Battle of Words between Kalloch and Supervisor Stetson

A disgraceful scene occurred in the board of supervisors meeting last evening Stetson member from the twelfth ward rose to a question of privilege and referring to the fact that Mayor Kalloch at a recent meeting of the board of election commissioner had reflected on the board saying that he had stopped members from stealing etc said that it was about time for the board to express itself on the subject. He went on to say that during his occupancy of the mayor's chair Kalloch had repeatedly and knowingly uttered the grossest falsehoods regarding members of the board and that he for one would stand it no longer

Supervisor Taylor rose to speak but Kalloch refused to recognize him and began speaking from the chair saying that he had the same right to attack supervisors in the board of election commissioners as the supervisors had to attack him or the board Cries arose "Come down from the chair if you want to speak" "Come down on the floor of the house" "Taylor has the floor" etc Kalloch continued haranguing the board amid cries for adjournment and a general uproar during which the board adjourned on its own responsibility and after crowding around the chair in a manner which for a time threatened to result in violence, finally broke up and left the chamber

CONGRESSMAN KEIFER'S VIEWS.

Ohio Sure for Garfield and Indiana Promises Well—The Grant Order to the Boys in Blue.

WASHINGTON June 27 —Congressman Keifer just returned says that Ohio will give not less than 20 000 for Garfield [illegible] last year called out the largest possible greenback and democratic vote As to Indiana it is a close state When times were hard and farmers feared worse distress from resumption there was an objection to the policy of the administration that is now past Democrats attacked the national banks and English is a national banker and represents that idea The democratic leaders are disunited while the republicans are wholly harmonious and united on their candidate.

Respecting Gen Grant's order to the Boys in Blue Keifer said "Is that not a grand thing? So like Grant—short crisp and business-like. I am waiting to see how the democratic press will cringe under it. They had been trying to create the impression that he was friendly to Hancock when all their insinuations are wiped out at a blow by this order that will electrify the veterans of the nation from shore to shore. There is no use denying it—Grant has a hold on the hearts of the people, and you will see the Boys in Blue fall in from Maine to California. It will take no second admonition from their old commander

MURDER AT OAKLAND.

A Well Known Bank Officer Shoots a Prominent Dentist

[SPECIAL TO OREGONIAN]

OAKLAND July 26 —A most shocking tragedy occurred in this city about 5 o'clock this afternoon Edward Schroeder, exchange teller in the London & San Francisco bank walked into the office of Dr Alfred Lefevre a well known and very popular dentist at Eighth and Broadway, and deliberately fired two shots at his victim the first of which entered on the left side two inches below the ribs, passed entirely through the intestines, and imbedded itself in the skin on the opposite side of the body. The ball was found and extracted by Dr Selnebrig a short time after the shooting Dr Lefevre survived his injury but thirty or forty minutes, when the remains were conveyed to the morgue. This tragedy has created intense excitement in our usually quiet and law-abiding community from the fact that both of the participants were highly connected socially The slayer of Lefevre has held his position in the London and San Francisco Bank for a long time and was greatly respected by all who knew him both socially and in business transactions Dr Lefevre was one of our best known and highly respected citizens, having practiced his profession here for many years There are many wild stories afloat regarding the animus of the shooting the chief reason being that Lefevre had had criminal relations with the wife of Schroeder but there is at present no definite proof of this assertion

The Inquest.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 —An inquest on the body of Dr Lefevre, of Oakland, shot yesterday by Schroeder, developed no new facts The defense declined calling any witnesses and the jury rendered a verdict charging Schroeder with murder Mrs Schroeder can not be found When she left her husband last night she said, "You will never see me alive again" It is reported that some of the jurors desire to implicate her in the act of her husband and that a warrant for her arrest is to be issued The affair has created great excitement and public opinion is divided as to the merits of the case

THE CRUISE OF THE CORWIN.

At Ounalaska June 7th—Progress in the Relief of Imprisoned Ships and for Exploration

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN]

WASHINGTON July 27.—Major E W Clark, chief of the revenue marine service received a report to day from Capt Hooper of the steamer Tom Corwin sent to the Arctic regions to relieve the imprisoned whalers The report was written at Ounalaska, June 7th He said that he arrived here on the 3d When he left San Francisco his crew was badly clothed and ill conditioned He reclothed them and took on a full supply of Arctic fur apparel, such as the natives wear and they were now in first rate condition for the business in hand The men were in excellent health and spirits During his four days' stay at Ounalaska they had taken in 53 tons more coal and large quantities of fresh cranberries, beef, pork and flour He intended to sail on the 8th of June When he wrote, snow was still on the ground the air chilly and raw but there were indications that ice in the straits would soon break up so they could pass up through He expected to find the New Bedford whalers where they were shut in last fall — the Vigilant and Mount Wollaston—just inside the straits. He had provisions enough and intended to revictual them so that they could proceed and spend the summer whaling and come home next fall. After relieving the whalers the Corwin will proceed to cruise into the Arctic ocean to look for the Bennett yacht Jeannette Should she not be found the captain says that he shall proceed to explore the unknown Wrangle Land. He had concluded not to take any additional sailors, but when they should arrive at St Michael's he intended to purchase dogs and sledges and hire drivers for a land expedition to determine, if possible, its entire coast and geographical character, and whether it was really a small island or whether it is a part of the continent or anything about it, so that hereafter it may be clearly defined on the maps. The report mentions incidentally that the revenue agent there had just gone to look after a vessel said to be engaged in selling liquor to Indians. He expected to be through with his relief work by the last of July, and that would leave three months for exploration in the Arctic ocean before he should try to get out. Officers of the department have every confidence in the success of the expedition

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 28, 1880.

THE DANGER AHEAD.

As time goes on and the people reflect more fully and carefully upon the probable results of the political contest now pending they are likely to see more and more clearly the danger of putting all power into the hands of the section defeated and baffled hitherto in its attempts upon the peace and integrity of the country. The movement on the part of the south is not now an open assault as heretofore, but in some respects it is even more dangerous, because it presents the aspect of an insidious attempt to steal into power under disguises cunningly adopted for the purpose of quieting the natural apprehensions felt by the northern people as to the danger of southern ascendency. Inasmuch as the chief strength of the democratic party is in the late confederate states, no one can honestly deny that it is most probable, nay certain and inevitable, that in case the democratic party should gain control those states would be uppermost, and would actually control the policy of the country. That the south should give the law to the party would not only be natural, and what certainly would be expected, but it is actually what has happened heretofore in all the history of that party. Of course the policy of that section from which the party derives three-fourths of its strength would prevail. Nothing else could be reasonably looked for. Moreover, in all the demands made by the south before and since the war, the democratic party of the north has ever shown itself a willing assistant and supporter. Now what is the southern policy? What does the south want? It is not difficult to see through the whole cloud of flimsy issues presented as a blind or cover to the real purposes in the near background. The desperate effort so long persisted in to get control of the government through the despotic methods which have made the south "solid" and which keep it so, is not aimless. The object is, as the south declared at the recent extra session of congress, to undo all the legislation growing out of the war; and this includes abrogation of the constitutional amendments, so that the blacks may be deprived of suffrage, the confederate debt paid, and the claims of rebel property owners met and satisfied. This is no visionary scheme, though at first blush it may seem so. Already the methods have been carefully calculated. It is not proposed to attempt the abrogation of the amendments by submitting the question to the several states. It could not be carried in that way, as the northern states would invincibly oppose it. But a more effective way would be found. The first step is get possession of the supreme court of the United States. In a recent speech at Indianapolis Hon. A. G. Porter, republican candidate for the governorship of Indiana, pointed out the successive steps in the democratic programme, as follows: (1.) The division of Texas into four states, according to the act of annexation, thus securing eight in place of two southern senators. (2.) The admission of Utah and New Mexico to secure four more senators. (3.) The organization of the state of Oklahoma to secure two more. This would give the solid south 44 senators, or exactly half the body. (4.) The abolition of all the reconstruction measures. (5.) The abrogation of all the constitutional amendments. (6.) The reconstruction of the United States supreme court. On this point Mr. Porter said: "It would be easy enough for a court composed of men believing in the southern theory of statism to hold that all these amendments are void for violation of the 'federal compact.' We know from experience in our own state how easily constitutional amendments may be overthrown to meet even the smallest exigencies of party. Now see how easily these amendments may be overthrown to meet the overwhelming demands of a section. The way is already prepared. A bill is now pending, introduced by Manning of Alabama, to increase the judges of the supreme court to twenty-one. Let that bill pass, and the south will demand that at least three-fourths of the increase shall be appointed from the south. The cabinet, three-fourths southern, will know how to select men whose sentiments are known beforehand on questions so vital. Upon an agreed case like that in our own state the amendments may be declared, in the language of the democratic platform, 'unconstitutional, revolutionary and void.' Judges who should thus decide would win honor in the south. Their memories would be canonized by the southern people, for they would have opened the hospitable door through which the whole flood of claims they believe just can be allowed." The reader only has to attend to the details of this plan for reorganization of the supreme court and overthrow of all war legislation, including the constitutional amendments, to see that it is not visionary, but entirely feasible. Given the power, and it can be and in all probability will be done. All know that the democratic party holds the amendments to be "unconstitutional, revolutionary and void." This is a solemn declaration made by that party in a national platform; and the analogy of the Indiana case shows how it may be enforced. Power only is wanting. The supreme court, which it is hoped to reorganize, is the key to the proposition; and the ante-war decisions of the supreme court show how that tribunal, when in sympathy with southern theories and purposes, may lend itself to their support. The danger, therefore, is by no means imaginary. Ascendancy of the democratic party means southern supremacy, and southern supremacy means renewal of the contest of state rights against national authority, with manifest danger to the peace of the country through an assault on the great settlements of the war,—an assault, indeed, under forms of law, but for that very reason more dangerous than an open attack of flagrant rebellion. Let no one suppose that the south, if it gets power in its hands, will hesitate to use it. Nor let it be imagined that General Hancock as president would stand as any real barrier against the scheme. For, in the first place, he would be controlled by his party, and in the next place we know from his career as a commander in the south that he is opposed to the reconstruction acts, negro suffrage and the constitutional amendments. In fact we know it by more positive proofs. In July, 1866, he wrote a letter to representative Glover of Missouri, indorsing the platform and candidates of the democratic party of that year, which platform declared all constitutional amendments, enfranchisement of negroes and the work of reconstruction, null and void; and he also specially approved Frank Blair's letter which urged that the army be sent to the south to undo the work of reconstruction. This letter was read a few days since by Secretary Thompson in the course of a speech at Denver, Colorado. It shows Gen. Hancock to be actually committed to the southern programme, as outlined above. That is, he is the candidate of the party which has fiercely declared all the settlements of the war as "unconstitutional, revolutionary and void," and he has himself specially approved that declaration. The people will pretty certainly conclude that the path of national safety and public peace does not lie that way. Gen. Frank Blair was as brave a union soldier as Gen. Hancock; and yet the country rejected Gen. Blair and his policy. Why should it now support Gen. Hancock, who is committed to the same policy which the country then rejected with indignation and alarm? It is well to look out for the breakers ahead.

Oregon's population now exceeds that of Delaware, one of the original thirteen. By the next census it will pass two or three more of them.

SHOULD RISE TO EXPLAIN.

Mr. T. H. Cann, late clerk of the board of land commissioners, as yet consents to lie under the imputation of being a dishonest and dishonored man rather than make to the public statements which he has made in private, that the members of the board, his principals, had the money which was in default on his accounts, that they had had it, or a large portion of it ever since 1874, and that they never paid any part of it back till after the investigation had commenced, when they hurriedly made a payment of between eight and nine thousand dollars. Mr Cann's excuse for his silence and concealment of the facts from the public, as he himself has stated, is that "Grover has had a great deal of trouble, and he don't want to give him any more." Mr. Cann intimated in his evidence before the committee that Grover had always "been good to him,"—so much so that he was induced to pay Grover $1600 for a block of ground which he knew was not worth anything like it. But then Cann got the money easily, as he received $1800 as assistant secretary of state, though he himself testifies that he never rendered any service for it; so that this transaction in land of Grover's West Portland Homestead Association, seems to have been merely a means of passing the money over to Grover. Cann was only the "handy man" of the administration, to certify to anything that was required, as the fraudulent Walker certificate and other transactions show. They had him, as it appears, because he was simple, irresponsible, and would do whatever he was told. One of his "services" was to buying in warrants for the treasurer at a discount though he testifies that he himself got no benefit from it. Mr. Cann was the factotum of a set of very corrupt officials, and if he does not tell all he knows he can never clear his character of the reproach.

Once on a time an orator in a discourse on politics, education, social science and other large topics, hit off a certain feature of our system of higher education with the emphatic remark, "Shut up your colleges; we have oarsmen enough!" Now we find the New York Times saying: "There is nothing to be gained in concealing the shameful fact that there are at the present time in Yale college men who have never once entered a boat and have never held a base ball in their hand. How they have thus managed to shirk their duty and evade the laws of the college outside people do not know, but surely it is a reproach to the faculty that they should permit students whom their parents have sent to the college in the hope that they would become earnest Christian oarsmen, to waste their time in study and to form a debased taste for classics and science."

Several fanatical agitators are causing much excitement among the ignorant and superstitious in various parts of this country just now by predicting the end of the world this year. These religious sensationists come around pretty often, and the wonder is that there are foolish people to give them encouragement. We believe some of those apostles of the "end of the word" are now preaching at various places in Oregon and Washington. But while they are preaching the end of earthly things, they may be trusted to hold to earthly things with a pretty tight grip—showing that instinct if it has half a show will triumph over the abdication of reason.

From the St. Paul Pioneer Press, which has special advices as to the progress of work on the Northern Pacific railroad in Dakota, we learn that work was never before so active as at present. The company now operates 716 miles of road on its eastern division. Nearly 500 new cars of all descriptions have been ordered to meet the demands for transportation. Sixteen new locomotives have been added. Track has been laid a distance of 138 miles west of Bismarck, and no doubt is entertained of reaching the Yellowstone before cold weather sets in.

Some close friends of General Grant in Des Moines, Iowa, report that while there recently he talked in a way which showed that he was extremely anxious for republican success this fall, expressing the opinion that every republican should do his utmost to render the victory in November not only sure, but overwhelming. He believes, it is said, that there should be more thorough organization than ever before, and that all ranks and degrees of republicans should go into the work actively.

It looks now as if the result of the judicial inquiry into the management of state affairs under the late administration would bring Mr. Chadwick in debt to the state in a total of more than twenty thousand dollars. By the time these suits are ended the people will see clearly how grossly the late officials abused their trust. But we fear they will have small chance of recovering the money of which their treasury has been plundered.

Struggling authors may perhaps be comforted by the following rehearsal of familiar facts: "Thackeray was not known as an author until nearly forty. Scott was forty-three when 'Waverley' appeared. Richardson became an author at fifty-one. Defoe was fifty-eight when he wrote his first novel. 'Gil Blas' was not finished until the author was sixty-seven."

Illinois will probably still be a little behind Ohio in the census tables. The returns are not yet complete for either state, but the total for Ohio will not vary much from 3,200,000, while the tables for Illinois will foot up just about 3,100 000. So Illinois must wait ten years more before it can pass Ohio and take the rank it has been claiming as the third state.

The total population of Pennsylvania—subject to some slight corrections—is 4,226,000, against 3,521,951 in 1870. This is a gain of over 700,000—a prodigious increase for a state so old as Pennsylvania and already so densely populated.

The population of Utah is 143,690. Ten years ago it was 86,786. Utah would have been a state long since had it not been for its "peculiar institution," and its population would be double what it now is.

President Hayes purposes to attend the reunion of his old regiment in Ohio on the first of September, remain in Ohio a couple of weeks afterward, and then off for the Pacific coast.

A sagacious observer notes that the Tanner experiment to show how long a man can go hungry and not die is being watched with great interest by the democratic party.

FAIRWEATHER'S FAST HORSE.—Mr H W Fairweather formerly general passenger agent of the O R & N Co now manager of the Walla Walla railroad bought a pair of handsome trotters last spring of which he was justly proud The following from a Walla Walla paper tells how one of the horses behaved On Tuesday evening last the horse attached to Mr Fairweather's buggy undertook to beat St Julien's time The effort was a commendable one and the time was remarkable—and so was the buggy In the course of time the proprietor came around and viewing the buggy carefully he espied a small knot hole and exclaimed "I guess I'll build a new buggy around that hole as it is the only part that is intact"

ROBBED.—B A Bengtson and Oscar Voigt have been working at the Cascades locks for a year past together and their joint earnings some $400 the former kept in his trunk in his cabin at that place One Andrew Trapp who had been working at the locks and stopping with the other two up to the 12th when he left He disappeared on the 15th and at the same time the money in trust with Bengtson was missing Trapp is a Swede pock marked rather tall in stature and had the appearance of being in ill health He had but slight knowledge of the English language The victims of Trapp's sudden taking off who are still at the Cascades offer $100 for the delinquent party and the cash

PUT IN TRIM.—A number of painters are employed in touching up certain portions of the new steamer Columbia while the incessant clatter of the caulkers hammers are heard above the busy hum of the men discharging freight The cabin and staterooms are being cleaned and brightened up and made to fairly shine Commodore Bolles proposes to have his new ship "put her best foot forward" when thrown open to public inspection By the time the freight is all out the Columbia will be ready for inspection and examination This will probably be about next Wednesday due notice of which will be given

HUMAN BONES EXHUMED.—A number of human bones were unearthed yesterday by a force of laborers who were engaged in excavating for the foundation of a new brick building on the east side of First street between Yamhill and Taylor The collection includes five grinning skulls which evidently belonged to the Indians from their shape A portion of a decayed box and a bottle were found with the skeletons, showing the burial to have taken place since the occupation of the country by the whites The point where the discovery was made was doubtless used by the natives in former times as a burial ground

REPAIRS AND ALTERATIONS.—During the present vacation the board of school directors are having some long needed repairs and improvements made to Central and North school buildings. In Central school the glass partitions in the upper story have been removed and the general arrangement of the rooms modified This improvement has long been necessary in order to meet with the requirements of the school All the carpenter work will be completed before the resumption of studies in September A new hall is also being constructed in the North school building and other repairs made

DISCHARGING FREIGHT.—A large force of men is engaged in discharging freight from the new steamship Columbia Two large barges have been hauled alongside the steamer and the freight is being hoisted from the hold and placed on the barges. The work of discharging progresses very slowly, as the freight is mostly railroad materials—car wheels locomotives, tenders and rails—and can be handled only with much difficulty A week or more will be required to complete the work of discharging the cargo

SCHOLARSHIPS.—Mr Walton, secretary of the board of regents of the state university has written a letter to Mr. Macrum, superintendent of public instruction for Multnomah that there are nine vacant scholarships from this county At the last commencement seven pupils who were appointed from this county graduated As yet there have been no applications for scholarships in the state university, and consequently the county court has not been able to make any appointments

NEWS NOTES FROM EUGENE.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN]

EUGENE CITY July [illegible] 1880

Farmers very busy haying

It is feared the recent dry spell will somewhat affect the hop crop as the vines do not seem to grow as much as in former years

Dr H Ellsworth leaves us for a trip to Union county for his health Mr Jasper Stevens has charge of the doctor's business at this place

Mr Emil Meis of San Francisco who is regarded as excellent authority in judging of the quality of hops states in his last circular that of all the varieties and grades of hop offered for sale in the San Francisco market last year that of Oregon takes the lead Washington territory comes next then California This is indeed flattering to the growers of Lane county as the bulk of hops raised in Oregon comes from this county

Word reaches us that on yesterday a fearful tragedy was enacted on the Mohawk Report has it that a slight difference arose between John Cartwright and a German named Mendo concerning some hay that was growing on disputed land Mendo was engaged in cutting the hay with a scythe when Cartwright appeared on the ground and disputed for the ownership of the land and the hay growing thereon Mendo told Cartwright to go away or he would cut off his head with the scythe or words to that effect Cartwright who was armed with a double barrel shotgun fired two shots at Mendo but missed him Cartwright then repaired to a house near by and obtained another gun loaded with buckshot and came up within about fifteen paces to where Mendo stood Mendo who was then forking the hay stopped his work and sticking his fork in the ground and resting on the handle asked Cartwright "Well what are you going to do about it? You have fired two shots at me but missed me" Cartwright responded by saying "I'll show you what I will do" and instantly leveled his gun and shot Mendo A part of the charge almost cut the fork handle in two and the other portion entered Mendo's bowels cutting them open Mendo died from the effects of the wound

CERTAIN OMISSIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I am surprised to learn that the $6000 gratuitously given by Messrs Grover Chadwick and Brown, as school land commissioners to J H Hackleman was not sued for. It was one of the most glaring of the many acts of plunder There were no services for him to perform and according to Col Cann's testimony he did not perform more than two to [illegible] if we establish the recording deeds during the entire four years for which he was allowed $1800 a year That Judge Deady would have disallowed this $6000, with possibly a deduction of one month is manifest from his disallowance of similar gratuity to Col Cann Suit should be brought now for the recovery of this money for the benefit of future officers of the state

Not a syllable appears in Judge Deady's review of the gratuitous allowance of $1000 or $1500 I think for defending the title to about $1 50 worth of [illegible] swamp land This transaction was severely commented on in the investigating committee's report Why does it not appear in the suit? WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 28, 1880.

A FREAK OF FATE.

Such a delightful place as it was—Mrs. Sylvester's drawing-room, with its ruddy glow from the grating, sending warm lances of light all over the cream-and-crimson carpet; the raw silk furniture of cream and pale blue and crimson; the velvet and satin-lined drapery at the four French windows; and all the numberless objects of elegance and luxury that went to make it such a charming place.

It was six o'clock of a March night, bleak and blustering outside, with streets filled with flying dust, and Mrs. Sylvester leaned back in her chair, with a sigh of selfish comfort, as she held the Japanese screen between her delicate face and the ardent fire.

She was a handsome woman, who wore diamonds and velvet as a queen wears her royal robes; a wealthy woman used to command and control; haughty and dogmatic in her positiveness.

And this evening she was in her most positive, imperious mood, as she sat there making her decision about Theo Vincent. Then she rang for lights, and by the servant sent a message for Miss Vincent to wait upon her as soon as Master Garnier and Miss Giralda could dispense with her services.

It was ten minutes later when Theo obeyed the summons, and came into Sylvester's presence—a slender, pale-faced girl of sixteen or seventeen, with lovely brown eyes, soft as velvet, and a great mass of brown hair on her small, graceful head—a delicate, refined, thoughtful-looking girl, who bore the indisputable traces of having worked almost beyond her strength.

She came quietly near to Mrs. Sylvester, and stood awaiting that lady's pleasure.

"I sent to have a word with you on a subject very distasteful to me, indeed, Miss Vincent," Mrs. Sylvester began, coldly. "I refer to a display of forwardness and boldness on your part toward certain gentlemen I might name, which has been called to my attention more than once. I desire to say that I shall not tolerate any further attempts on your part, Miss Vincent, to flirt with gentleman visiting at the house—notably with Doctor Pennington— Ah, do not interrupt me, and I am indignantly sorry to say, my son also!"

"Mrs. Sylvester, you—"

Theo attempted to gasp her protest; but the cold relentless voice resolutely hushed her.

"Denials are more than useless, Miss Vincent. It is a notorious fact that you, a mere servant, a common nursery-governess and seamstress, boldly attempted to engross Doctor Pennington's attention last night, and on one or two evenings last week, when you were ordered to attend the children in the drawing-room. Again, upon more than one occasion, you have inveigled my son into conversation with you—you, whom his mother hires as a servant! Miss Vincent, I have—"

Theo was standing there white and shivering, her eyes full of a horrified mortification and insulted pride.

"Mrs. Sylvester," she interrupted, hotly, "I cannot permit you to launch such a torrent of abuse at me. It is not true that I have tried to flirt with your guests or your son. Doctor Pennington spoke to me and I answered, as any one would have done. As to your son—"

And her lips curled involuntarily—a gesture which did not escape Mrs. Sylvester's eyes.

"We will not discuss the subject further. You have acted disgracefully, and, in justice to my little, innocent children, I have decided to remove you from your care over them. You are discharged from to-night, and, in place of a month's notice, you can have a month's wages—as is my custom with all my servants. As to a character," and the cold eyes took a malicious look at the pale, trembling girl, "of course that is out of the question. You are excused, Miss Vincent."

She pushed a role of bills toward her, but Theo did not touch it. Instead, her face grew suddenly cold and haughty, and she walked out without a syllable of further protest."

And, somehow, Mrs. Sylvester realized that she had done something more than simply discharge a servant.

* * * * * * * * * *

"It's a shame—a burning shame!" Aunt Ibby said, indignantly. "It seems to me that nowadays the rich do nothing but grind the poor. You poor child you—don't cry any more about it! That Sylvester woman isn't any very great shakes herself you take my word for it, or she'd not be thinking such things about you. Don't cry Theo. Chirk up, and we'll go out for a walk to Central Park this afternoon, eh?"

But Theo did not "chirk" up, nor did she go with dear old Aunt Ibby for a walk to Central Park. Instead she had cried and worried herself into a hot fever that defied all home remedies—a fever that ran higher and hotter, until even Aunt Ibby thought it was best to send for a doctor; and a doctor was sent for by little Tim Maguffin, next floor above.

"And be quick about it, too," she said, slipping a penny in his grimy little paw, "You can run around to Doctor Perry's office in a few minutes, I know, and tell him to come right around."

But Doctor Perry wasn't home—out of town for several days—and Tim's wits were puzzled to know whether, so long as Miss Theo was so awfully sick, one doctor wasn't just as good as another; and in that full belief, he rushed off for his mothers's family physician, to find Doctor Callender also not available.

And then, to stand disconsolately on a street corner, wondering what on earth would become of Miss Theo, just as a doctor's carriage passed him—evidently a doctor's, and a well-to-do one, too, as witness the colored man with folded arms, the proud-stepping horse, the handsome robe.

And ragged little Tim, all unaware he was an instrument of unalterable fates, succeeded in attracting Doctor Pennington's attention.

"Say, you! your wanted down to Miss Theo Vincent's—No. 86 Pollard street—sharp, too! Goin?"

Theo Vincent! Clyde Pennington was surprised, and, conscious of a pleasurable sensation along with it.

"All right, my boy! I'll be there before you are."

And sure enough, when Tim reached home, there stood the doctor's carriage at the door, an object of envious admiration for a score of urchins; while Doctor Pennington was sitting in Aunt Ibby's snug little parlor, explaining the cause of his appearance, and listening to her account of Theo's illness.

"And now, if you'll allow me to see my patient," he said.

And then he went in, to find Theo delirious and talkative, and entirely unconscious.

"Of course it is not true," she said, as he sat down besides the pure white cot. "I never flirted with Mr. Harry Sylvester, or Doctor Pennington, either. It wasn't fair of her to turn me off without a character, was it? And Aunt Ibby and I are so poor!"

And although he knew there was no recognition in her bright eyes, still his face flushed.

"She is very sick," he said, gravely, "I will see her again this afternoon, Mrs. Bley."

That was the beginning of their friendship; and when, three months later, Theo was sufficiently recovered to accept a situation as traveling companion to a society lady, she knew that her most valued friends in all the world was Doctor Pennington

* * * * * * * * *

A perfect afternoon, even for la belle Paris, and Mrs. Sylvester, leaning back in her chair besides the window of her grande salon, thought that life in the gay city was the one thing desirable, and would be the one thing most glorious, were it not for her son Harry.

For her son, her darling, her chief pride, for whom nothing in all the world was too good, for whom marriageable maidens and shrewd mothers had angled visibly and invisibly who never yet had been disappointed or thwarted in all his life, was in a state of desperation and distress that made Mrs. Sylvester wonder, in agitation and dismay, what would be the result of it all.

And "it all" meant that Harry Sylvester was in love with Mrs. Van Renseller's charming young friend and companion—our own Theo Vincent, whom two years before Mrs. Sylvester had turned out of doors.

"She will not listen to me," Harry had said to his mother, before he went out that afternoon. "I tell you I must have her answer—her favorable answer, too—before another twenty four hours goes over my head, mother. Unless I get her for my wife, I'll shoot myself just as sure as fate. I love her—by George! I never cared so much for anything or anybody before, and it's only the memory of your cruel treatment of her—the feeling that she thinks you would not sanction an engagement—that keeps us apart!"

"You think that?" she said, tremblingly—a little dismayedly.

"I know it," he answered, hotly. "She is gracious and kind, but beyond that, I tell you her just pride restrains her. See her, mother, if you want to do me a favor—if you don't want to have me brought in dead some time—you will go and tell her you want her for your daughter."

And Mrs. Sylvester knew as she looked upon her son's handsome, haggard face, that, even if it killed her to so humble herself, she must do it for his sake.

"It is awfully cruel of you!" she said, piteously, and he had interrupted her, firmly:

"You can take your choice—Theo Vincent for your daughter, or—get along without me!"

"Harry!"

"I mean it. She won't refuse me, if you ask her. By Jove! she is the only woman in the world I shall ever ask. She shall accept me!"

"I think there is no danger of her refusing such an offer," she said, a little of the old scornfulness in her voice.

"Of course you will go," he answered, decidedly. "When I come back at seven to dinner, I will hear what you have to say from her."

Then he had gone, and Mrs. Sylvester had sat in trouble and dismay, thinking it all out, wondering how she could accomplish her errand, and yet not sacrific her pride—how she could conciliate Theo Vincent, and yet give her to understand it was an honor she had come to offer her.

She ordered her carriage, and dressed in a most elaborate toilet, was driven to Mrs. Van Renseller's, where, surrounded by wealth and refinement, Theo Vincent had won her way to her heart, and been made not only the confidential friend, but the beloved daughter and choice companion.

As Mrs. Van Renseller's friend, society opened its most exclusive doors, and our little Theo had found herself, almost unconsciously a pet and favorite in pleasant social circles, where her personal attractiveness, her sweet winsomness, her refined intelligence, held the position given her.

And Harold Sylvester had renewed his acquaintance with his mother's discharged governess, and—

This was the result—Mrs. Sylvester waiting in Mrs. Van Ranseller's parlor for Theo Vincent to come, with whom she was to plead in her son's behalf.

It seemed like some impossible burlesque, as she waited, and there was a sharp struggle within her between pride and love for her son—that idol and darling who never had been denied, and who ruled her with a rod of iron.

For his sake. Only, sorely for his sake. And then Theo Vincent came in, a vision of elegance, and loveliness, and sweetness, in her soft white dress.

She greeted Mrs. Sylvester in a courteous way and then waited inquiringly, and perhaps, just a trifle haughtily.

And Mrs. Sylvester rushed at once into her errand.

"No doubt you will be quite surprised to receive messages that are delivered personally, Miss Vincent. But, as I am willing to remove any obstacle from the way to my son's happiness, I determined that in no better way could the accomplishment of his wishes be decided than by my coming in a perfectly friendly way to you."

She certainly had not sacrificed her dignity, and certainly had spoken very well.

And Theo, her face expressive of surprise, listened.

"I think I do not at all understand, you, Mrs. Sylvester. You have evidently undertaken some commission for your son, but, what might I inquire?"

This from the girl she disgraced? But she put the curb on herself, and went blandly on, for her boy's sake:

"Your delicacy certainly does you credit. I cannot express how delightfully charming I find it, my dear Miss Vincent. Yes, I am commissioned by my son to make you an offer of his hand, his name, his position, his affections. And, Miss Vincent, if you will charitably permit me, I cordially endorse whatever will conduce to Harold's happiness,"

And, for the first time in her life, Mrs. Sylvester realized that she had—eaten humble-pie.

A curious little look swept over Theo's face

"Will you tell Mr. Sylvester, for me, please, that in the society in which I move, it is not customary for gentlemen to do their proposals of marriage by proxy? Will you also be kind enough to tell him that under any circumstances I could not possible consider his offer? And will you inform him that I have been engaged to Doctor Clyde Pennington for the past three months? And, as Mrs. Van Renseller's carriage is waiting, and I have an engagement at half past five, be so good as to excuse me, Mrs. Sylvester."

And so Theo's turn came, and like a young duchess, she bowed to the woman who had, all unconsciously, been her fate. While Mrs. Sylvester went back to her son.

* * * * * * * * * *

But as, a year afterward, Mrs. Doctor Pennington, sitting in her luxurious parlor on Fifth Avenue, read aloud to Aunt Ibby the notice of Harold Sylvester's marriage it was self evident he did not commit the suicide he threatened—unless, rushing into marriage with a pretty girl, after a month's acquaintance, he considered as such.

A correspondent at Hood river writes: "How is it that certain persons can occupy thousands of acres and upwards of public lands to the exclusion of others, while I find it difficult to hold with certainty more than 80 acres." It is probable the writer has not taken proper and efficient methods in relation to his own rights and those of others.

Business matters in the home market are about in the same situation as at our last report, transactions in financial circles aggregating about the usual volume for the season. There is no special call from any direction, and the banks are in supply adequate to meet the wants of their regular customers, which is readily done on the usual terms.

There is nothing new in regard to wheat, the markets abroad being substantially unchanged, while the amount of local trade is insignificant.

Flour is coming forward in quantities sufficient to meet the wants of the trade which is locally tolerably active, while the demand for export is only moderate. The San Francisco quotations are not sufficient to justify shipments thence and hence Oregon is sending but little to that market at present.

Oats are steady and supplies are readily taken at current quotations.

The wool trade has apparently received a slight check, buyers operating more cautiously under advices from the east. Prices offered are 1@2 cents under the buying figures of a week ago. Other products unchanged.

Some negotiations are pending for charters for the coming wheat crop, though but few vessels, as far as we can learn, have as yet closed engagements. Iron vessels to Cork or the United Kingdom for orders cannot be obtained at less than 6is.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome deliverer to carry them out of their misery.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot come to him personally. Enclose postage stamp for [illegible]

Swallowing

POISON

Spurts of disgusting mucous from the nostrils or upon the tonsils, Watery Eyes, Snuffles, Buzzing in the Ears, Deafness, Crackling sensations in the Head, Intermittent Pains over the Eyes. Fœtid Breath, Nasal Twang, Scabs in the Nostrils, and Tickling in the Throat are

SIGNS of CATARRH.

No other such loathsome, treacherous and undermining malady curses mankind. One-fifth of our Children die of diseases generated by its Infectious Poison, and one-fourth of living men and women drag out miserable existences from the same cause. While asleep, the impurities in the nostrils are necessarily swallowed into the stomach and inhaled into the lungs to poison every part of the system.

Dr. Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure absorbs the purulent virus and kills the seeds of poison in the farthest parts of the system. It will not only relieve, but certainly cure Catarrh at any stage. It is the only remedy which in our judgment, has ever yet really cured a case of Chronic Catarrh.

G. G. Presbury, Prop. West End Hotel, Long Branch, Cured of 25 years Chronic Catarrh.

S. Benedict, Jr., Jeweler, 697 Broadway, N. Y. (memb. of fam'y) Cured of Chronic Catarrh.

E. H. Brown, 839 Canal St., N. Y., Cured of 11 years Chronic Catarrh.

J. D. McDonald, 710 Broadway, N. Y. (Sister-in-Law) Cured of 30 years Chronic Catarrh.

Mrs. John Doughty, Fishkill, N. Y., Cured of 8 years Chronic Catarrh.

Mrs. Jacob Swartz, Jr., 300 Warren St., Jersey City, Cured of 18 years Chronic Catarrh.

A. B. Timons, 183 Montague St., Brooklyn, (self and son) Cured of Catarrh.

Rev. Wm. Anderson, Fordham, N. Y., Cured of 20 years Chronic Catarrh.

Mlle. Aimee, Opera Prima Donna, "I have received very great benefit from it."

A. McKinney, R. R. Pres., 33 Broad St., N. Y.: "My family experienced immediate relief."

&c., &c., &c., &c., &c., &c

Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure is the most important medical discovery since vaccination. It is sold by all Druggists, or delivered by D. B. Dewey & Co., 46 Dey St., N. Y., at $1.50 a package. To clubs, six packages for $7.50. Dr. Wei De Meyer's Treatise is sent free to anybody.

MIDDLE AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Office Hours—10 to 4 and 6 to 8. Sundays from 10 to 11 A. M. Consultation free. Thorough examination and advice, $5. Call or address
